

Food Allergies

The following foods have been identified as being hazardous to some children in our school community who have life-threatening allergies. These allergies can be air borne or contact and pose considerable threat to the health of children with allergies.

The following items have been identified as threats:

- all nuts and tree nuts
- fish or shellfish
- eggs (cooked or raw) It is impossible to ban eggs in foods. We ask for no eggs raw or cooked.
- Kiwi
- Peanut butter (Please note: no WOW butter)

Even foods that contain traces of the above allergens or have been produced in a facility that processes these foods may be a threat. Please check labels and avoid any foods that contain traces of the allergy threats.
